The Hook Swipe File

30 opening lines for coaches and consultants. Copy the structure, change the words to fit your topic.

How to use this file

Your hook is the first sentence of your video. It decides if anyone hears the rest.

Pick a structure below, swap in your topic and your client's words, and say it in the first 2 seconds. No intro before it.

Three rules

- Say it in the first 2 seconds. No "hey guys" before it.
- Use your client's words, not industry words.
- Promise something small and specific, then deliver it fast.

> Before: "So today I want to talk about consistency..."

> After: "You don't need more motivation. You need a smaller first step."

1. Result first

- This one change doubled how long people watch my videos.
- I got my first 3 clients from content with one simple shift.
- Here's the edit that keeps people watching past second 3.
- The fastest way to look confident on camera has nothing to do with confidence.
- One habit made my content 10 times easier to make.

2. Call out who it’s for

- Coaches, this one's for you.
- If you sell a service online, stop scrolling.
- If your content gets views but no clients, watch this.
- Consultants who hate being on camera, this is for you.
- If you've tried posting every day and gave up, listen.

3. Start with the mistake

- You're losing clients in the first 3 seconds of your videos.
- The biggest mistake I see in coaches' content.
- Stop starting your videos like this.
- This is why nobody books a call after watching your content.
- You're explaining your method. Your client doesn't care yet.

4. Drop them mid-story

- The client sent me 40 minutes of footage. The best line was at minute 31.
- Last week a coach asked me why her videos get zero DMs.
- I almost told a client to stop posting. Here's what changed.
- Three months ago I posted a video that got 30 views. It got me a client.
- A consultant told me she hates watching herself. Here's what we did.

5. Say the unpopular thing

- You don't need to post every day.
- Going viral is the slowest way to get clients.
- Your camera is not the problem.
- Trending audio is overrated for coaches.
- You don't need a niche. You need a specific person.

6. Ask their question

- Why does my content get views but no clients?
- How do I post consistently when I'm busy with clients?
- What should I even talk about on video?
- Do I need to show my face to grow?
- How long should my videos be?

> Tip: the best hooks are usually already in your recording. Watch it back and find the strongest sentence, then move it to second 0.
